Quotable: Critics of God's Word, knowingly or not, criticize Christ. He revered the Scriptures, each jot and tittle, and asserted that "the scripture cannot be broken" (John 10:35). He quoted it as His supreme authority; the critics do not...Let us then share His respect for "every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God" Matt. 4:4.

Nothing so clearly evidences the condition of the human heart, not so solemnly demonstrates its corruption, as its attitude toward Christ. Much is recorded against man in the Old Testament (see Ps 14:1-4); yet, dark as its picture is of fallen human nature, it fades into insignificance before what the New Testament sets before us. "The carnal mind is enmity against God" (Ro 8:7); never was this so frightfully patent as when He was manifested in flesh. "If I had not come, and spoken unto them, they had not had sin: but now they have no cloke for their sin" (Jn 15:22).
